

Socfin publishes action plans following Earthworm Foundation's investigation of allegations against Okomu (Nigeria) and LAC (Liberia)

July 24, 2024

In April 2023, Socfin announced its decision to investigate environmental and social grievances raised by NGOs and communities. Socfin asked Earthworm to perform an assessment of those grievances and committed to release public action plans containing detailed corrective measures for any confirmed finding.

Earthworm has completed its investigation for Okomu in Nigeria as well as LAC in Liberia and published the reports presenting their findings and recommendations respectively on 28 June 2024 and 24 July 2024 .

The reports provide the status of each allegation together with an update on any actions taken by Socfin to date.

In most cases, it is noted that Socfin had already put in place a number of corrective measures to address the issues.

However, Socfin agrees with Earthworm that more needs to be done to further reduce these concerns and that some serious issues need immediate action. This is reflected with the publication of Socfin's action plans for Okomu and LAC.

Socfin will continue to work closely with local communities and increase its engagement with local NGOs, thus recognizing the importance of their support and collaboration in the continuous improvement process that Socfin started with its Responsible Management Policy released in 2017 and revised in 2022.

Socfin will communicate on the progress towards its action plans on a regular basis.

Socfin wishes to thank Earthworm Foundation, as well as the local communities and the local NGOs that participated in the investigation process.
